The 26th Cambridge International Symposium on Economic Crime

Banking on Trouble

This year the Cambridge International Symposium on Economic will celebrate its twenty-sixth year. It is a testament to the Symposium's unique blend of relevance, practicality and topicality that has not only resulted in successively larger and more comprehensive programmes, but also the realisation on the part of governments and financial and other institutions of the extent of the risks thrown up by economic crime and in particular organised crime. The annual Cambridge Symposium is a truly unique event which over the years has made an unrivalled contribution to understanding the real issues involved in preventing and controlling economically motivated serious crime and thereby promotes meaningful responses and in particular fosters co-operation.

The Symposium brings together in one of the oldest medieval Colleges within the University of Cambridge, ministers, legislators, senior officials, diplomats, judges, regulators, law enforcement, intelligence and security officers, financial intermediaries, bankers, professional advisers, compliance and risk officers and scholars from around the world. It regularly attracts over 900 participants from 80 or so different countries – many of whom return year after year.

The Organising Committee of the Symposium gives careful consideration, after consultation with governmental and other institutions, to designing each programme. The Twenty-Sixth Symposium will focus on the threats confronting from both inside and outside, the stability, integrity and viability of banking and other financial institutions. Our programme which consists of keynote and plenary sessions, supported by numerous workshops, will address those areas of risk thrown up not just by crime and terror, but also our responses to such threats, in the context of protecting and creating wealth. This year we will give particular attention to initiatives designed to address the problems resulting from serious corruption and its control. However, there will also be a focus on the impact of highly profitable crimes on the system and in particular those who are responsible for minding other people's wealth. In the result the programme provides a unique opportunity at a very practical level, to share the experiences of over 300 specialist speakers and panellists in the prevention and control of risks to the integrity of the financial system, government and our societies.

The programme is structured to provide a depth and breadth of opportunity, second to none, for those participating in the programme to become aware not only of existing, but also new threats, and how best to address them. The very real regulatory, legal and reputational risks that confront those responsible for protecting the wealth of others, not only in the context of anti-money laundering controls, but also in many other and often developing areas of regulation, have always been a key issue for the Symposium. Through the numerous plenary and other workshops and in particular the considerable opportunities to meet colleagues socially, there is a degree of inter-action and collaboration that could only be encountered in an institution that has a record for promoting learning and education which is truly unique. The University of Cambridge with collaborating institutions throughout the world is able to offer a wholly different experience in addressing these fundamentally important issues.

The Cambridge Symposium is not and has never been just a conference. It is organised on a non-profit making basis by some of the world's most respected academic and research institutions with the active involvement and support of numerous governmental and inter-governmental organisations. It also draws on the support of many leading practitioners and experts within the financial and commercial sectors. It was established twenty-six years ago to promote meaningful international co-operation – in the fight against financial crime and criminal activity that is economically relevant. Its record is its best testament. Successive symposia have made a real contribution – at all levels, to promoting stability, good governance and the disruption and control of serious crime and terror. Those who are concerned to protect and promote the integrity and wellbeing of their national economy, institution or enterprise – or who are concerned to better understand the risks facing business today cannot afford to miss this special event.

Jesus College, Cambridge and the University of Cambridge

Jesus College was founded as a college, within the University of Cambridge, in 1496 by Bishop Alcock of Ely. The history of the College is, however, rather more ancient. An order of nuns occupied the site and buildings for at least two hundred and fifty years before this. Since the inception of the annual Cambridge Symposium, twenty-six years ago, the Master and Fellows of the College have been pleased to host the event and the College administers all financial matters pertaining to the programme.

The earliest record of the University of Cambridge is in 1209. The University consisting of over 100 departments, faculties and schools has a deserved international reputation for excellence. A number of the University's centres and programmes are involved in supporting the annual Cambridge Symposium on Economic Crime.

Principal Organising Institutions

The Centre for International Documentation on Economic and Organised Crime (CIDOEC)

CIDOEC was established as a non-profit making organisation in 1988 to promote collaborative and comparative research in the prevention and control of organised and economic crime. It is based in Cambridge, although it has branches in southern Africa, North America, Latin America and the Far East. The Chairman of CIDOEC's Advisory Board is Mr Saul M Froomkin QC, a former Attorney General of Bermuda.

The Institute of Advanced Legal Studies and the Society for Advanced Legal Studies

The IALS was established in 1947 and is a constituent member of the School for Advanced Study of the University of London. Although part of the University of London, the Institute's role is national, and is funded by government on this basis. Its library is the national law library and the Institute's research staff is concerned with promoting and conducting research across a broad spectrum of legal and related issues. The Institute's Advisory Council is chaired by The Rt Hon The Lord Hope of Craighead, Lord of Appeal in Ordinary. The Deputy Chairman and Chairman of the Development Committee of the Institute is Sir John Mummery, Lord Justice of Appeal. The Society for Advanced Legal Studies is a registered charity concerned with promoting collaborative research between practising lawyers, academics and those involved in the administration of justice in Britain and elsewhere. The Society's Advisory Council is chaired by The Rt Hon The Lord Scott of Foscote, Lord of Appeal in Ordinary.

The Centre for Financial Regulation and Crime, Cass Business School, City University, London

Cass Business School is one of the leading business and management schools in the UK and has the advantage of being based in the City of London, with the Lord Mayor as the University's Chancellor. The Centre for Financial Regulation and Crime (CFRC) was established in association with a number of regulatory and law enforcement agencies, including the City of London Police. The aim of CFRC is to provide a centre of excellence in order to promote and conduct research and teaching, across a broad spectrum of disciplines, in the area of financial regulation and crime control.

The International Association of Anti-Corruption Authorities

The IAACA was established by resolution of a number of governments at a meeting hosted by the Prosecutor General of China in Beijing in October 2006. The primary objective of the IAACA is to facilitate the effective implementation of the UN Convention against Corruption and assist governments generally in fighting corruption and corruption related crime. The IAACA's Secretary General is Dr Ye Feng of the Supreme People's Procuratorate of China.

A complete list of all the organisations around the world supporting the annual Cambridge Symposium is to be found on page 2 of this programme.
